

Application for Student Support to Attend Behavioral Health Meetings

Award Description:

The Department of Psychiatry and Behavioral Sciences is excited to support medical student attendance at regional and national conferences. The conference does not have to be primarily about behavioral health, but your attendance at the conference must relate to interest, research/work in mental health. Up to $1200 of your costs to attend a conference could be reimbursed. Reimbursable costs could include conference registration fees (if applicable), flights, hotel, food, associated workshops, and poster or presentation materials. You must be matriculated in medical school at the time of the conference to receive reimbursement. All can apply though priority will be given to students who are planning to present – via poster, presentation or panel – at the conference.
